The Kirchenstück is our flagship in Hohen-Sülzen. It is a very old vinyard, which is already mentioned in documents before the 30-year war. Her original name was Griebelsteyn-and this vociferous name is very apt. For the edition of the Kirchenstück consists of soft, limestone stones, which can be torn between your fingers. And this is also the secret of the Kirchenstück: The vines have a good nutrient supply, but the undersoil is extremely chalky. In this way, the grapes can develop an opulent fruit without appearing one-dimensional or applied.

The vines for the Große Lage Kirchenstück have an average age of 35 years. The yields are very low, the must is highly concentrated. Despite the density and thickness, the wine is a flatterer, especially a nasal flatterer. A ripe fruit basket with pineapple, sweet yellow plum and candied citrus fruits literally jumps towards you. One thinks first of fullness and opulence until you are completely surprised in the mouth by the straightforward, almost prancing manner. The mineral scaffolding and the perfectly balanced acidity complement each other in an ideal way to the ripe character of this wine.
