The Kirchenstück is our flagship in Hohen-Sülzen. It is a very old vinyard, which is already mentioned in documents before the 30-year war. Her original name was Griebelsteyn-and this vociferous name is very apt. For the edition of the Kirchenstück consists of soft, limestone stones, which can be torn between your fingers.

The pliocene floors are crisscrossed by limestone banks and the daytime temperatures are always a little higher than in our locations in Mölsheim or Nieder-Flörsheim. Hohen-Sülzen lies in the so-called Eisbach Valley; And as the name suggests, the cold stream, which originates in the Donnersberg massif, exerts a considerable influence on the cooler nights. As a result, despite the high grape ripeness, the wines retain their freshness and elegance and annoying acidity.

This Spätburgunder comes from our oldest Pinot Noir vines. The yields are extremely low and the chalky underfloor brings a wonderfully cool freshness to the wine. The dark fruit aromas of currant and black cherry are withdrawn in favour of a profound heresy. In the mouth, the wine remains dark and spicy, and minerality and erality dominate. This Spätburgunder matured in 1-year old barrels from Burgundy for almost 2 years.
